DIED

At the Westside Dry Goods Store on the evening of Saturday, the 29th September, of general depravity, OLDMAN CREDIT after a brief(?) illness of about five years. In life he was a fraud and deceitful from the beginning. He robbed his best friends and lied about it. Like Peck-sniff's horse he was immense in promise but not much to perform.

Procrastination was his bosom friend and he walked arm in arm with deadbeats. Now that he is buried may he so continue TO LIE. He will be agreeably missed at the Westside, and already Spot Cash has taken his place and is breaking the record on low prices. He is everybody's friend and hopes permanently to reside in our fair city and will be found at the Westside dispensing genuine good value in Dry Goods, Waterproofs, Manties, Capes, Jackets, Umbrellas, Etc., Etc. He will gladly prescribe for all requiring his services without Bankrupting their Exchequer.

The Passing of Summer

"The melancholy days are here, the saddest of the year," but to many they usher in a season which might most appropriately be termed the "gladdest of the year"; the season of social festivities, balls, parties, etc.

To us it means the arrival of the "Dress Suit Season," and, by the way, speaking of dress suits reminds us: Our facilities for catering to this most important branch of the trade have never been better. We have imported this season a rich range of the most select and correct "full dress" fabrics. We make it a point to intrust this class of work to only the most competent workmen, consequently we produce garments which are in every sense of the word "high class;" faultless in fit, in appearance graceful and elegant.

We respectfully request the consideration of all good dressers at this the advent of the Dress Suit Season.

Are You
A "Tender Foot"?

Not in the wild western sense, but in the sense of having tender feet. If you are, we want to fit your next pair of Shoes for you. There's a great deal in the way a shoe is first put on and the way the foot settles into it. If it's tight where it should be and loose where it should be, there'll be very little trouble We make a study of these things. Prices? Of course they're right or we would not sell so many Shoes.

EUROPEAN DIFFERENCES.

Trouble in the East Discussed by the British and French Cabinet Councils.

Immediate and Energetic Steps to be Taken Regarding Madagascar.

London, Oct. 4.—The meeting of the cabinet, called two days ago, was held at noon to-day, all the ministers, with the exception of Sir William Harcourt, Henry Campbell Bannerman and the secretary of state for India, being present. The meeting closed at 1:40. Lord Dufferin, the British ambassador to to France has, according to the St. James' Gazette, been summoned to London. Several of the Paris newspapers attribute the calling of the cabinet meeting to complications which are likely to arise and may result in the total overthrow of China through the continued Japanese victories. The Independence of Brussels says the time has not yet come for England to interfere in Chinese affairs. England's differences with France are grave but if negotiations are prudently conducted a settlement should not be difficult.

Nothing has been officially promulgated as to the decisions of the cabinet council. The Exchange Telegraph Co. says six thousand troops will be sent from India to protect the Chinese treaty ports. It is semi-officially announced that the cabinet session was for the discussion of affairs in the east.

It is understood that the French cabinet decided to take immediate and energetic steps in Madagascar.

The Central News says the cabinet has decided to send two additional cruisers and two more gunboats to China.

Paris, Oct. 4.—The French cabinet met to-day. After some discussion it was decided to prosecute a newspaper for its strictures regarding the French army.

GOVERNMENT SHARP PRACTICE.

An Important Provision Omitted from an Act of Parliament.

Ottawa, Oct. 4.—It has leaked out here that there is serious trouble between the government and the banks on account of grave irregularities by which an important proviso which was added by parliament last session to a bill which Mr. Foster, minister of finance, introduced, was omitted, the measure becoming law without the said proviso. The bill in question gives the government power to increase the circulation of Dominion notes from twenty to twenty-five million dollars. When it was before the house a proviso was embodied in it that dollar for dollar should be held in gold by the government for every note of the extra issue of five millions. This is the proviso which disappeared mysteriously before the royal assent made the bill law. It will be remembered that when the bill was before the house Sir R. Cartwright insisted on the proviso, declaring that without it the bill would be a very risky piece of financial legislation, but for all that the bill appears in the Dominion statutes without this proviso.

It is learned in official circles here that Sir John Thompson has offered the position made vacant by Sir Thomas Galt as chief justice of the common pleas court in Ontario to W. R. Meredith, leader of the opposition in the province, and that the latter will likely accept. The premier will present a memorandum to the council this afternoon providing for his appointment. David Creighton, manager of the Toronto Empire, is here to-day seeing Sir John Thompson about the matter. It is understood that O. A. Howland, member for South Toronto, will be the leader of the Conservative party in Ontario in place of Mr. Meredith if the latter accepts the justiceship, as it is said he will.

Sir John Thompson will leave for England next week. A. W. Ross is here to-day. His appointment will be considered before Sir John leaves.

NANAIMO NEWS.

Excursion Coming Down to the Exhibition To-morrow.

Nanaimo, Oct. 4.—The hundred yard dash between A. Hilbert and A. Thompson took place on the Caledonian grounds last evening in the presence of a crowd of spectators. Thompson gave Hilbert four yards' start and was the favorite. His backers could not get their money covered, although a few hundred dollars changed hands on the result. It being an amateur race the prize was a pair of pants. Both men went off with the crack of the pistol, and Hilbert came in winner by about four feet. Time, 11 1-4 seconds.

The trustees of the fire department have been instructed to commence building a new hall in the place of the one destroyed as soon as the insurance money has been paid over.

A committee has also been appointed to solicit subscriptions for a new bell for the new hall when completed.

There will be an excursion to Victoria to-morrow under the auspices of the Wellington brass band for the purpose of taking in the exhibition.

The agricultural show to be given in this city on Saturday ought to attract a large crowd, as the competitors are very numerous.

MEXICAN RUINS.

Most Interesting Yet Found in the Southern Republic.

Oaxaca, Mex., Oct. 4.—Antonio Crevas, a noted scientist, has just reached here from Tabasco, where he discovered some of the most wonderful and interesting ruins yet found in Mexico. While exploring a wild wooded district in the valley of the San Pedro river, he came upon an ancient deserted village surrounded by eighteen pyramids. They are thirty meters high and constructed of brick and stone. Mr. Crevas will organize a company to make further explorations.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

News of the World in Brief Paragraphs.

John Jackson, who performed one of the most heroic actions of the civil war, recently died at the house of correction in Annapolis. While the Union fleet was trying to go up the Savannah, Jackson swam out to a dangerous torpedo which lay in the channel and removed its cap, rendering it harmless. The government gave him a medal. Drink was his ruin.

Workmen engaged in excavating for a railroad track at Hingham, Mass., yesterday unearthed five skeletons over six feet in length, with jaw-bones of unusual size.

Joe R. Lane was yesterday appointed guardian of Jas. Thompson, one of Davenport, Ia.'s, old residents and for years regarded as the richest man in Iowa. Mr. Thompson became heavily involved and his mind gave way under the strain.

Labor Leader Hugh Cavanagh said today that General Master Workman Sovereign would not be re-elected at the New Orleans convention of the Knights of Labor. He thought James Campbell, of Pittsburgh, would be chosen to succeed Sovereign.

JAPANESE ARE CONFIDENT.

They Are Determined to Occupy Pekin Before the Emperor's Birthday.

Burning of the Flower Boats at Canton Attended With Heavy Loss.

San Francisco, Oct. 4.—The steamer Gaelic arrived from the Orient at 8 o'clock this morning. She brings Hong Kong advices up to September 12th and Yokohama up to September 21st. The Japanese papers devoted considerable space to reports on preparations for the battle of Ping Yang, but as the Gaelic sailed from Yokohama only a few days after the great conflict had taken place, no definite particulrs were obtained. The news of the Yalu river fight had also been received, but nothing more than the dispatches indicating the victory of the Japanese fleet.

The following will serve to illustrate the confidence felt in Japanese success: "All our loyal and valiant military men," says Shin Choya, "are confident that by the third day of November the Japanese will have taken Ping Yang, crossed the Yalu river and stormed Moukden and the treasury of China. The Japanese flag will be unfurled and the emperor's birthday and Japanese victories will be celebrated there on that day."

The victory of Ping Yang was followed almost immediately by the arrival of the emperor at Hiroschima, where he is directing war operations. His majesty issued the following rescript to the troops:

"We were rejoiced to receive intelligence immediately after your arrival at headquarters that our army had gained a great victory at Ping Yang. We appreciate the fidelity shown by our officers and soldiers and applaud the signal success they have achieved."

The rescript, together with a congratulatory message from the empress, was at once telegraphed to Corea. The rescript was received at Tokio and Yokohama with immense rejoicing and both cities were profusely decorated.

The district about Tientsin is inundated and the calamity is said to be hailed at Pekin as a blessing, since it offers an effectual impediment to Japanese invasion. A rumor says that orders have been issued forbidding any attempt to lower the waters despite the ruin and famine entailed upon the unfortunate peasantry. Concerning the reported landing of Japanese troops on an island in Society bay, which was to be made a base of operations, no information has been received by the Japanese government.

The steamship Chean was recently wrecked in Shetung pass, with the loss of several Chinese soldiers.

The Gaelic also brings particulars of the burning of the flower boats at Canton on August 31st. The fire was caused, it is said, by the careless burnig of Joss paper on one of the boats. In a few minutes the flames had got a firm hold and spread to the neighboring boats, which were roped together very firmly. The fire engines reached the river promptly, but they could not render any assistance, as it was beyond the power of the pressure, and the fire was therefore left to execute its havoc, and did not burn itself out for five hours. A large number of sampans put off as near the burning boats as was possible and effected many rescues, but hundreds doubtless perished either in the flames or in the river. The number of lives lost is roughly estimated at one thousand. The property lost was valued at over half a million of dollars.

The treaty of alliance between Japan and Corea was arranged at Seoul on August 26th, and is as follows:

Article 1. The object of the alliance is to maintain the independence of Corea on a firm footing and to promote the respective interests of both Japan and Corea by expelling Chinese soldiers from Corean territory.

Article 2. Japan will undertake all warlike operations against China, both offensive and defensive, while Corea will undertake to give every possible facility to Japanese soldiers regarding their movements and supply all provisions.

Article 3. This treaty shall cease at the conclusion of the treaty of peace with China.

The government at Pekin has sent to foreign ministers a dispatch in which is expressed the fear that Japanese men-of-war might attack China under foreign flags, and requested the ministers to allow her to stop foreign men-of-war by firing blank cartridges at them and to examine them before they proceeded on their way. The foreign ministers refused their consent. The government recently ordered local officials to seize Japanese spies wherever found. The government believes that there are eight or nine hundred Japanese who are disguised as Chinamen and travelling in the interior. A Japanese gentleman who was travelling in Chinese dress was seized the other day at Shin Hai and thrown into prison. He assured the Chinese he was not a spy and asked them to examine a certain Chinese Buddhist priest, as he was a personal friend of his. The priest was summoned, but before he came the Jap effected his escape. The authorities were so angry that when the priest came to their court they threw him into prison and beheaded him in the other's stead.

"The Chinese government," states the North China News, "has promised every possible reparation for the brutal and unprovoked murder of Wylie, the Scottish missionary. So serious does the government recognize the situation to be

News of Eastern Canada in Short Paragraphs.

Sir Napoleon Cassait has been appointed chief justice of the superior court of Quebec, vice Johnson, deceased.

D. L. Scott, barrister, of Regina, has been appointed to the Northwest judgeship rendered vacant by the death of Colonel Macleod.

John Ayre, proprietor of the Lake View hotel and a resident of Toronto for a quarter of a century, is dead. He was prominent in secret society circles.

John Conway, of Montreal, has been appointed superintendent of the Lachine canal in the place of Kennedy, who was dismissed for his connection with the Curran Bridge affair.

The Earl of Westmeath arrived in Winnipeg on Sunday from New York. He is looking up the conditions of the country with a view of affording information to his tenants at home.

The Ontario cabinet has appointed Rev. G. Wrong, professor of history and ethnology in the Toronto university. Wrong, for several years, has been the lecturer in the department of which he now takes a chair. This was the chair held by the late Sir Daniel Wilson.

Mayor Parent of Quebec, besides offering a reward of $100 for the conviction of some of the rowdies who attacked the French Baptist mission on Friday last, has instructed the clerk of the recorder's court to take action against two parties supposed to have been mixed up in the affair.

The Montreal Island belt railway has asked permission to build an elevated railroad along Craig and James street west. A large deputation of citizens opposed the scheme. The committee decided the company could only build along the water front and must satisfy the city regarding their financial standing and power used.

Dr. Brennan, professor of Laval University, and one of the ablest of Montreal, for the American Health Association, declared that in women the habit of tippling was more prevalent and disastrous than imagined. Within the last four months he had seen four women, each a mother of seven children, and moving in good society, die from the effects of chronic alcoholism.

The assessed value of Toronto the present year is $149,120,000, as against $153,459,006 last year, a reduction of $4,440,000. The assessment of the various parts of the city show considerable reductions, and if the court of revision reduced the assessment in the same proportion as last year the total figures will not exceed $145,500,000. The census of the city is given at 172,000, an increase of 5000 during the year.

Thomas Moore, proprietor of Land and Water, London, England, who wrote the first pamphlet on Canada for distribution in Great Britain some years ago and Mr. Thomas Cleve, a native of Richmond, Que., but who now owns the largest condensed milk factory in Great Britain, are in Canada to invest a quarter of a million in Canadian interests of a nature which they cannot at present divulge. They will come to Winnipeg and the coast.

The Montreal Star, in an editorial, severely criticizes the new Quebec province loan, and says as a piece of financing it is regarded as outrageously bad, and calculated to have an injurious effect upon provincial securities. It attributes the chief responsibility to Lieut.-Governor Chapleau, who is the chief executive officer of the Credit Foncier in this country. It regards the situation as critical, and is doubtful if any English member of the assembly will assume responsibility for the loan as he would have to do if he accepted the portfolio.

The arrest at Montreal of a number of Grand Trunk railway conductors on a charge of "knocking-down" fares, has been followed by the arrest in Toronto of two of the oldest conductors on the road. It is stated that the company have discovered a plot of considerable dimensions to defraud them and that a number of other arrests will follow. The clue which has resulted in the arrests was furnished by two men who were arrested in Montreal a few days ago on a charge of forging railway passes.

The gross earnings of the C. P. R. in August last amounted to $1,655,552, working expenses $1,080,296; net profits, $575,256. In August, 1893, the net profits were $734,736. For the eight months ending August 31, 1894, figures are as follows: Gross earnings, $11,310,030, working expenses, $7,975,176, net profits, $3,335,754. For the eight months ending August 31, 1893, there was a net profit of $4,494,945. The decrease last year is therefore for August, $159,479, and from January 1 to August 31 $1,159,188.

The supreme court sat at Ottawa on Tuesday. There were present Chief Justice Sir Samuel Strong, Justices Gwynne, Taschereau, King and Sedgewick. The chief justice announced that judgments would be given at the end of the week, including the prohibition reference. Solicitor-General Curran inquired as to the reference in the provincial fisheries case. The chief justice replied that owing to the poor health of Judge Fournier they would not be likely to have his assistance during the present term, and the court would not care to sit on a reference without a full quorum. The parties to the reference will be notified that it will not be taken up at this term.

JAPS AND CHINESE.

Both Countries are Doing Their Utmost in Preparation for Battle.

Washington Hill, Sept. 28.—Prince Kung, who has been recalled to imperial favor in China and placed at the head of the privy council is said, by diplomats who have known him personally, to be one of the ablest and most adroit statesmen of the Chinese empire. He has behind him a long record of distinguished service, beginning in 1850 and running until April, 1884, when he fell into disgrace. He was the founder of the Tsung Li Yamen, or privy council, has a broad knowledge of foreign affairs, and to his courage and energy in remaining at Peking in 1861, when the British occupied the place and the imperial family fled, was due the very existence of the reigning dynasty. In April, 1884, the emperor dismissed him from office in disgrace, in his decree asserting that probably on account of broken health he had become careless and neglected his duties. He has since recovered, however, and though he is in the sixties he is said to be a vigorous alert man. During his retirement from office he has always opposed Li Hung Chang, the viceroy, and his restoration is taken here to mean the ascendancy of his party over Li Hung Chang. It is also believed that he stands committed to a vigorous war policy, and will endeavor to force the fighting with the Japanese instead of following the Fabian policy of Li Hung Chang, who must give place to Kung in the direction of affairs. So far as known here, Prince Kung had one son, a youth of evil habits, who died in a fit of dissipation many years ago. Should he have a second it is not believed here that he would endeavor to place him on the throne and displace the reigning emperor, as the empress would scarcely put him in a position where he could destroy his own son unless she was confident of his loyalty.

The officials here who have been closely watching the progress of the war in the east are puzzled to account for the landing of 5,000 Japanese troops at Posselt bay, announced from Teintsin. This bay lies directly on the eastern boundary between Corea and the Russian maritime provinces. It is not believed any Chinese trops are in the neighborhood; the country is too rugged and barren to warrant the plan of marching the troops overland clear across Corea to join the army advancing on Moukden, and is not considered conceivable that the Japanese are preparing to resist a possible advance by Russian troops from the north into Corea. The purpose of the other movement reported from Teintsin, the reconnoitering by the Japanese fleet of the Chinese coast near Shanhaikwan, is more reasonable and apparent. Shanhaikwan lies on the boundary between the Chinese provinces of Manchuria and Chili, at the eastern end of the great wall which traverses China. It is directly on the railroad from Teintsin to Moukden, and is a place of great strategic advantage. Should the Japanese effect its capture and land an army, there will be nothing in the way of a rapid advance on Peking, the capital, and unless the Chinese resistance is more formidable than it has been so far, the march could be made in a week or ten days.

The Japanese legation has received late advices as to the political complexion of the Japanese parliament, which was recently elected and is about to convene. It shows that the emperor will have solid support in prosecuting the war. The elections show that there will be no division on the issue and that the forthcoming parliament will give heavy appropriations for the army and navy. A feature of the elections was the defeat of Mr. Kentara and Mr. Abbe, the most violent leaders of the opposition towards the government.

Tacoma, Oct. 2.—It is officially announced that 5,000 Japanese troops have arrived close to Passiet bay, near the Russian frontier. Previous to this announcement it was reported that the Japanese fleet had been sighted, September 29, ten miles from Shanhaikwan and 200 miles from Peking. Large bodies of Chinese troops have been drafted to that district in the last few days to prevent the Japanese from landing.

Shanghai, Oct. 2.—The anti-foreign feeling at Peking is increasing hourly, and the authorities find it difficult to repress the outbreaks of the Chinese population. The leading Chinese representatives at Peking fear that if the Japanese march upon Peking, the capital will be captured, as the Chinese soldiers gathered to defend it are dissatisfied and unreliable.

It is reported that Li Hung Chang has received orders to proceed to Corea.

ROBISON CRUSOE'S ISLAND.

The Revenue That Calle Derives From Juan Fernandez.

It is not generally known that Juan Fernandez—the island on which Alexander Selkirk, the Robison Crusoe of romance, lived for so many years—is at the present time inhabited. Two valleys, winding down from different directions, join a short distance back from the shore, and there now stands a little village of small huts scattered round a long, one-storied building with a veranda running its whole length. In this house lives the man who rents the island from the Chilean government, and the village is made up of a few German and Chilean families.

The tiny town is called San Juan Baptista, and the crater-like arm of the sea on which it is situated and where Alexander Selkirk first landed is now called Cumberland Bay. The island is rented for about £200 a year. Rent is paid partly in dried fish. Catching and drying the many varieties of fish and raising cattle and vegetables wholly occupy the contented settlers, and much of their little income is obtained from the cattle and vegetables sold to passing vessels. The cattle need no care and the vegetables almost grow wild. Turnips and radishes, first sown here by Selkirk himself, now grow rank and wild in the valleys like weeds. There is also a race of wild dogs which completely overran the island, depending for existence mainly upon seals. They are descendants of a breed of dogs left by buccaneers.

At the back of the little town, in the first high cliff, is a row of caves of remarkable appearance hewn into the sandstone. An unused path leans to them, and a short climb brings one to the dark mouths. About forty years ago the Chilean government thought that a good way to get rid of its worst criminals would be to transport them to the Island of Juan Fernandez. Here, under the direction of Chilean soldiers, these poor wretches were made to dig caves to live in. In 1854 they were taken back again, however, and the caves have since been slowly crumbling away.

The narrow ridge where Selkirk watched is now called "The Saddle," because at either end of it a rocky hummock rises like a pommel. On one of these is now a large tablet with inscriptions commemorating Alexander Selkirk's long and lonely stay on the island. It was placed there in 1868 by the officers of the British ship Topaz. A small excursion steamer now runs from Valparaiso to Juan Fernandez Island. The round trip is made in six days, and three of these may be spent on the island fishing and visiting those lonely but beautiful spots which nearly 200 years ago were the haunts of Robison Crusoe.—Melbourne Argus.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

A Gist of What is Going on the World Over.

THE RING.

LESSER LIGHTS.

New York, Oct. 3.—The Sun publishes the following form John P. Dunn, the well-known sporting man, under date of New York, September 28th: "It is rumored that Jack McAuliffe is about to retire and that Horace Leeds is to be proclaimed lightweight champion without a fight for it, as Jack did. Now, will you confer a favor on me by challenging Leeds to fight to a finish, on behalf of Stanton Abbott, at any weight from 126 to 133 pounds. I am of the opinion that Horace would be a nice thing for Stanton. Abbott is the smallest lightweight outside of Mike Cushing who has fought in America in a great number of years, and you will agree with me when I state that he has done more fighting in the eighteen months he has been here than any foreigner we has ever visited America. Abbott leaves here accompanied by his wife by the Cornwall line of steamers next Tuesday. I leave here to-night. Griffo, so it is stated in the papers here, has broken loose from Behan, his backer, on his own account. In the presence of Martin Dowling and myself at the training quarters Griffo asked Abbott to fight him and Stanton said he certainly would. Abbott received an offer to-day from a western club to box Jimmy Dime, on December 15th ten rounds. Stanton, however, has contracted malarial fever here and is taking the sea voyage to eradicate it if possible. He injured the tendon of his left elbow in the second round of the late fight with Everhardt, and he was compelled to fight on the defensive for twenty-three rounds. He displayed the greatest ring generalship I ever saw for a man in such condition. His favorite blow is a left-hander, and all he could do then was to use the back of his hand and do what Griffo calls "gloving." Take a tip, if Abbott meets Everhardt, bet that he will do him in from four to fifteen rounds."

GRIFFO AND ABBOTT.

New York, Oct. 4.—"Young Griffo" and Stanton Abbott, the lightweight champion of England, were matched last night to fight to a finish. The men will battle for a stake of $25,000 a side and a purse. Owing to Dunning's objections to allowing Abbott to fight in New Orleans, the battle will have to take place in some other city. "Billy" Plimmer and "Johnny" Murphy, who recently fought a twenty-round draw, were also matched to fight again. This time the contest will have to be to a finish.

THE TURF.

UNDER TWO MINUTES.

Flying Jib made a wonderful showing at Chillicothe, O., last week. Andy McDowell was working him, and he hitched him to a high wheeled pneumatic wagon wit a running mate. The pacer scored several times, and finally McDowell gave the word to those in the judges' stand. The gelding paced away beautifully. He went to the half 1 00in w,gTa bakej dwjyxwbrjqgwy half in 1:00 and finished the mile in 1:58 1-2. The performance has excited horsemen greatly, as it was the fastest mile ever paced under similar circumstances.

BIG WINNINGS.

The sporting public is agape over the enormous amount of money won by H. McCalmont's four-year old, Isinglass. Since the colt appeared on the turf his winnings in stakes alone have reached £56,935, beating the record of the duke of Portland's Donovan, whose winnings footed up £53,154. Mr. McCalmont has backed his horse heavily and won a large fortune.

—In an age of fraud and adulteration, it is certainly gratifying to know that such an extensively-used preparation as Ayer's Sarsaparilla may be implicitly relied upon. It never varies either in quality, appearance, or effect, but is always up to the standard.

How to Get a "Sunlight" Picture.

Send 25 "Sunlight" Soap wrappers (wrappers bearing the words "Why does a Woman Look Older Sooner Than a Man?") to Lever Brothers, Limited, 43 Scott street, Toronto, Ont., and you will receive by post a pretty picture, free from advertising and well worth framing. Hood's Cured After Others Failed

Scrofula in the Neck—Bunches All Gone Now.

Sangerville, Maine.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the soreness had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared." BLANCHE ATWOOD, Sangerville, Maine.

KOOTENAY MINING NEWS.

Kind of Progressiveness Practiced by the Davie Government.

Nelson Tribune.

Robert Neely, who has a ranch near Five-mile Point, has been missing for ten days or more, and his friends believe he has been drowned. His boat was found on the beach, some distance from his ranch; with it were an oar, a bottle, and a hat. Mr. Neely was about 60 years of age.

The double-compartment shaft on the Wellington mine in Slocan district, is down seventy feet, and is running through fine ore. McDonald Bros. have a contract to pack 40 tons of ore to the wagon road.

J. Fred Hume & Co. have disposed of their grocery and hardware departments to J. A. Turner and J. A. Kirkpatrick, who will do business under the firm name of Turner & Kirkpatrick. They have also disposed of their dry goods department to Fred Irvine, who will do business under the firm name of Fred Irvine & Co.

D. McGillivray and Captain Tatlow, of Vancouver, arrived at Nelson last night. The former states that the end of track on the Nakusp & Slocan railway is within two and a half miles of Three Forks, and all the material needed for the completion of the road is on the ground. The road will probably be turned over to the Canadian Pacific on Nov. 1st, and if turned over it will be operated this winter.

Because the attorney-general saw fit to dismiss two cases that were sent up for trial by two justices of the peace at New Denver every government organ in the province is jumping on the justices. The trouble with the government organs is, that when they are not abject sycophants they are vindictive partisans. The two justices referred to are both worthy men, and are certainly endowed with more intelligence than the pris who are doing their utmost to discredit them. A. M. Wilson is an old time miner and prospector, who was commissioned a justice of the peace while residing at Ainsworth; D. B. Bogle is the editor of the Slocan Times, and has the ability to roast to a turn the class of Englishmen of which the editor of the Miner is a fair specimen. As justices of the peace, Messrs. Wilson and Bogle may have arrived at wrong conclusions, conclusions at which the attorney-general would not have arrived. There are men in the legal profession who even pick flaws in some of the conclusions arrived at by the attorney-general, but they are not called upon by the opposition press to step down and out of business.

Between thirty and forty men are employed at Pilot Bay on the smelter buildings. One smokestack is completed and another is well under way. The day the smelter is blown in will be a red-letter one for Kootenay, as it will be the beginning of a period of prosperity that will only end when our mines are exhausted.

For half the money that has been spent in the building of the Nakusp & Slocan railway, the provincial government could have built first class roads that would have given every mining camp in Southern Kootenay connection with water transportation. First class roads would have done more to hasten development of our mines than the building of a single railway, that, at best, affords transportation facilities for but a portion of a single mining district. But, then, that kind of "progressiveness" is not the kind of "progressiveness" on which the Davie government holds the sole copyright.

During the month 1154 tons of ore, of the value of $102,825, were shipped from the mines in South Kootenay.

Nelson Miner

Mr. W. S. Drewry returned to Nelson by the steamer Ainsworth on Wednesday. He reports that he has made great progress with his work in the region about the head of Sixteen Mile Creek, where observations covering over three hundred square miles have been made. His camps have been very high, in no place less than 6500 feet above the level of the sea. Mr. McGregor, with one detachment of the party, has now moved into the country across the lake to the south of Crawford creek, and Mr. Drewry left again on Thursday for the north side of the same river. Very little game was seen in the mountains. One mule deer and a silver tip were killed.

W. Maclean was in town Thursday and reports striking a small but very rich ledge in the neighborhood of the Dardanelles. The ledge is only eight or ten inches wide, but is composed of solid galena and is said to average 1200 ounces of silver to the ton.

The Enterprise Mining Company, which has diverted the course of the south fork of the Lardeau river for one thousand feet, netted $45 per hour during their first run.

A large number of men went up to the hills on Thursday to do assessment work; the last chance probably, as snow is getting deep in the basins and on the peaks.

CZAR ALEXANDER.

The serious illness of the Czar may well cause serious discussion in European political circles. Monarchs' deaths in constitutionally governed countries cause no revolutionary changes of policy, but the present czar's successor may have important changes to make. If it be true that the czarewitch favors friendly relations with Great Britain and Germany and the abandonment of the French alliance his accession will necessarily have a material effect on the political state of Europe. We must suppose that in such case the great international conflict which so many expect to see would be indefinitely postponed, if not altogether averted. France would hardly care to face alone the powers of the triple alliance. As to the internal affairs of Russia it is not likely much difference would be made by the death of Alexander and the accession of his son. For a time, probably, there would [illegible] those who detest autocracy and long for freedom, but unfortunately their prospect for success would be poor. To the Nihilists, of course, the change of rulers would be of little moment; their hatred is impersonal and their bloody projects would be directed against the son as they had been against the father. The latter has been delivered from their murderous designs on many occasions, and seems likely now to escape them altogether. The son may not be so fortunate. In any event there is no reason to expect anything else than a continuation of the autocracy and the war between it and its deadly enemies. Reforms are not likely to come Russia's way for some time.

A FOOLISH DEVICE.

Says the Colonist: "The organs complain that the policy now in operation takes a great deal of money out of the people's pockets, but is the policy which they propose to initiate going to take less? Mr. Laurier does not say so." But Mr. Laurier does say so. He and his party have announced most distinctly the policy they propose to follow if placed in power will take a great deal less money out of the pockets of the people than is now taken by the N. P. They promise to waste less money in the administration of the country's affairs, and therefore to ask less money in the way of revenue. That desirable result they will bring about, too, without impairing the efficiency of the government machinery—it will, in fact, be much improved. Then, as the Colonist should know by this time, the Liberals propose to abolish the tribute which the people are now compelled to pay to the Red Parlor, and by this reform they will reduce the taxation by a very large sum indeed. Taxes will not be imposed for boodle or for bonusses to the favored few, but only for the country's needs, under the coming Liberal regime. If that policy is not definite enough for the Tory organs it is for the masses of the people. We have a strong suspicion that the Colonist sees this fact plainly enough and is assuming an air of stupidity with the purpose of comforting itself—hiding its head in the sand, as it were. That device commends itself strongly to a certain class of minds.

BIMETALLISM.

To the Editor.—In your issue of the Times of the 21st instant you published several communications on bimetallism, a subject that should attract the attention of the public, and one, in my opinion at least, that is deserving of more consideration at the hands of our reforming politicians, than any other public question of the day.

The arguments set up by the Montreal Gazette would lead the public to believe that silver was demonetized in 1873 by Germany and the countries of the Latin Union, because the value of the two metals could not be maintained. Evidently the editor of the Gazette has been deceived, or he is trying to deceive others, for the majority report of every monetary commission that has been appointed by the different governments of the world so as clearly show that the main arguments against an inflation of currency was that it depricated the purchasing power of money. The scheme of demonetizing one of the metals throughout the western world originated soon after the discovery of gold in California and Australia, at a time when the yield was at its maximum, but which was then expected by many to continue on an ascendancy scale for an indefinite period. An eminent writer (Dr. Quincey) published at that time an elaborate collection of current accounts (Dr. Quincy) published at that time an elaborate collation of current accounts from which he arrived at the conclusion that the annual outturn of gold would soon reach seventy millions sterling, or $350,000,000.

On the basis of such expectations the governments of Europe were invoked by Chevalier and others to prevent the anticipated depreciation in the value of money, or, in other words, the anticipated rise in general prices, by the demonetizing, not of silver, but of gold. Chevalier (fall of gold 1856-57) said: "The quantity of gold annually thrown on the general market approaches, in round numbers, a milliard of francs, ($200,000,000). Those two countries (California and Australia) must, for yet a long series of years, produce gold in such quantities and on such conditions as to render a marked decline in its value inevitable. It is absolutely certain that so vast a production should be accompanied with a great reduction in value."

Under these appeals of Chevalier and others, several nations in Europe, notably Germany and Austria, in 1857, demonetized gold. It is probable that the movement in that direction would have become general in Europe but for the resistance of France. It was changed at least as early as 1865 into a movement for the demonetisation of silver. In the convention in 1865, in which the Latin Union was formed, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland insisted strenuously upon the adoption of the gold standard, but were overruled by France. But this change from demonetizing gold to demonetizing silver was more of form than substance. The object aimed at by both was through a disuse of one of the money metals to protect the creditor classes and those having fixed incomes against a fall in the value of money and a rise in general prices. This is the pith and marrow of the monetary discussion of the last thirty years.

In the official resume of the doings of the French monetary commission of 1869 the arguments upon both sides were summed up. In behalf of the gold standard it was said: "The rise in the price which has taken place within the last twenty years in a great number of merchandise is evidently due to many causes, such as war, bad harvests and increase in consumption, but it is very probable that the depreciation of the precious metals has contributed to it, since there has been a striking coincidence between the rise of prices and the production of the new mines of gold and silver. The annual production of the two metals which was only $80,000,000 in 1847, exceeds now $200,000,000. It has nearly tripled, and it is easy to see that the real value of the metals has diminished. It is difficult to estimate exactly what the diminution is, but whatever it may be, demands the attention of the governments, because it affects unfavorably all that portion of the population whose incomes remain nominally the same and undergo a yearly diminution of purchasing power. As governments control the weight and standard of money, they ought, so far as possible, to assure its value; and as it is admitted that the tendency of the metals is to depreciate, this tendency should be arrested by demonetizing one of them."

In behalf of the double standard it was replied as follows: "Many economists argue that the precious metals, having become very abundant, have lost 10 or 15 per cent. of their value, and that the situation must be redressed by making money scarce by demonetizing silver. To this it may be answered that the great discoveries of gold of the last twenty years have injured nobody. The new mass of gold, spreading over the whole world, has found employment in stimulating all forms of business, and as a consequence, the value of gold has fallen very little. According to Mr. Newmarch, the mass of gold and silver has augmented 3 per cent. per annum, so that the equilibrium has been maintained. And the present is an especially inopportune time to demonetize silver, because the annual production of gold has been falling off for several years. It was $200,000,000 in 1853, and it now no more than $140,000,000. What will happen to the civilized world if silver is demonetized and if gold shall fail?"

The Dutch monetary commission of 1868, adopting the view of the advocates of a gold standard, maintained that the value of money had been depreciated by an excessive gold production since 1848, and that as a great gold production still continued, rise in the value of gold would not occur, even if a greater share of the monetary function was devolved upon it, by demonetizing silver. Their language was: "In consequence of the very great production of gold it is not probable, even if gold is more employed as money than heretofore, that we shall see the fall in the value of the precious metals which we have witnessed for thirty years followed as to gold by any permanent rise."

In all the European discussion, after 1848 and prior to the German demonetization of silver and its consequences, the point made was not that either metal had depreciated relatively to the other, but that by reason of extraordinary supplies of gold from California and Australia, supplemented about 1865 by new supplies of silver from Nevada, both metals have depreciated relatively to labor and commodities, and that those having fixed incomes were being injured by a rise in prices. So long as the double standard existed a new supply of either metal was only an addition to and only affected the value of the general mass of money and not the relative value of the metals, as the Gazette would lead the public to believe.

The "fall in gold," which Chevalier lamented in 1857, was its fall in relation to property. He pointed out how the double standard had prevented any change from occurring in its relation to silver, and how it would continue to do so until the silver of double standard countries was exhausted. In order, therefore, to protect the interests of the income classes, it was claimed to be necessary to demonetize one of the metals, and gold being the metal which then promised the most abundant yield was selected for the purpose.

The editor of the Gazette says: "It is no more practicable, by legislation, to maintain a fixed ratio between the value of gold and silver than between wheat and corn." This is not a fair illustration; it is not a parallel case, and the argument is very illogical. In the first place the governments of the world do not pretend to control the mills of the world in the manner that they do in the mints of the world. If the government took control of the flouring mills, as they do the mints, and close the doors of said mills against certain classes of wheat, as they have closed the doors of the mints against silver, would it not unnecessarily depreciate the value of that wheat, all things being relatively the same, and would it not appreciate that variety of wheat which had free access to the mills, and also, the lands naturally adapted to the production of that variety of wheat? And would it not give those controlling the commodities a monopoly of the situation? But the gold advocate will say this is all bosh. Maybe so, but it proves as much in one case as it does in the other. The fallacy of the argument is that wheat and corn possess a natural value, over which legislation has no control, an intrinsic value, capable of meeting human wants and necessities, independent of governments, while gold and silver have very little or no intrinsic value, but a commercial value that depends entirely upon legislation backed by the stability, the continuity, and the confidence the community has in political institutions.

THE DEMOCRATIC SPLIT.

An Endeavor Being Made to Mend the Breach.

New Orleans, Oct. 4.—The Democrats have sent to the sugar planters who have lately joined the Republican party on the tariff issue a proposition to settle the matter without bringing in the negro. The planters declare that they do not want to revive the negro issue, and the Democrats point out that this can be done by submitting the names of the Republican and Democratic congressional candidates to a white primary to be held this month and to be conducted on the same lines as the regular elections. No political conditions are to be insisted on, but only white voters, whether Democrats, Republicans or Populists, are to cast their ballots, the sole test being that of color. If the Democratic candidates receive a majority of the white votes the Republican voters are not to be compelled to support him, but must take down their candidates. The Republican nominee of the third district is strongly in favor of the disfranchisement of the negroes. In the fourth district, which is outside of the sugar region, the Populists invited the Democrats some time ago to submit the names of the Democratic and Populist candidates to a white primary so as to shut out the negroes, but this offer was refused. The Democrats now make the same proposition to the Republicans. The chief idea is to settle the question of choosing congressmen in advance of the congressional election by the white vote, so that the November election will be merely a formal approval of the action of the white voter. This will shut the negro out entirely, leave them without any influence in politics and prevent an exciting campaign conducted on the color line. The Republicans have not replied to the Democratic invitation for a white primary and are divided on the matter.

THE "DUCHESS" AT HOME.

The Popular Irish Author of Many Clever Love Stories.

Mrs. Hungerford is known to her immense circle of readers as the authoress of Molly Bawn. Like a good many other women writers, she did not care at first to put forth her own name in connection with her literary work. Now, however, she does not mind acknowledging that the Duchess' real self is the wife of an Irish gentleman, and that she finds in the Emerald Isle all the material for her charming and brilliant studies of British social life.

The daughter of a well known county Cork clergyman, Canon Hamilton, Mrs. Hungerford comes of a clerical and military stock, her first Irish ancestor having come over from Scotland in the reign of James the First. Even when quite a child she delighted in literary composition and by the time she was eighteen managed to spend a good many hours in story writing. Phyllis was completed before she was twenty, and was accepted by James Payn for Smith & Elder. Mr. Payn, as was his wont with young authors in whom he took an interest, was exceedingly kind to the new Irish novelist and gave her many valuable hints which she has been able to carry out in her later works.

The Duchess resides near Brandon, only an hour from Cork by rail. There the popular authoress lives remote from the haunts of men in an old fashioned Irish house renowned for its hospitality. She is surrounded by a husband and six children, who never find that her literary work interferes in any way with her duties as a house mother. She does all her writing during the morning hours in a room which, though supposed to be her study, is not sacred from any household intruder. Were it not that Mrs. Hungerford possesses the secret of method, she could not get through all she does. Each story is the outcome of a bundle of notes taken at all times on odd scraps of paper—the back of a letter, the edge of a newspaper, or on the address side of a post card. She is a conscientious worker, and takes care that all her references and the bits of verses with which she embellishes her stories are correct and apposite. Not content with being a novelist, Mrs. Hungerford contrives to get through a certain amount of journalistic work. Most of her novels are syndicated in America, and also run through in serial form in some prominent English society magazine.

Although very popular with her fellow writers and a member of the Society of Authors, Mrs. Hungerford can seldom find time to come to London, and she is thus much less known than many a less famous writer who has nothing like her record.

Small and dark, she has the vivacious Irish temperament, and thoroughly en-

—The local union of the young people's societies of the city, met last night at the Y. M. C. A. and arranged to give a series of socials in aid of the library association. The first will be under the auspices of the Epworth League at Metropolitan Methodist church on Wednesday next.

—Otto Olsten, of Seattle, who met with a serious accident on the street car yesterday was very much better this morning and the medical men now have hopes of his recovery. He spent a very fair night and was rational before morning. His sister, Mrs. Schram, came over on the Rosalie this morning.

—There is so much interest being worked up by the tug of war that some of the citizens' committee are talking about challenging the directors of the association to a contest. While the matter was being discussed last night some wag said that he would back the Chinese team to pull the winners off their feet.

When ordering Flour ask for Lion Brand. Lion! Lion! Lion!

—The children of Cedar Hill school will attend the fair in a body on Friday. First, thanks are due the directors of the fair for a great reduction in rates, and, second, thanks to a nobleman in the country (nothing to do with Worcester sauce) who together have conspired to give the country urchins a chance to mix with their city cousins.

—Mr. J. G. Brown, the popular vocalist, will begin his classes in elementary vocal music on Monday evening next at 8 o'clock in the hall of the First Presbyterian church, Blanchard street. Mr. Brown's abilities in this line need no recommendation from us. Already quite a number have signified their intention of profiting from his tuition, and no doubt large classes will be formed.

—In speaking of the Midwinter fair concerts, the San Francisco Daily Chronicle, April 13, 1894, says: "Without a doubt the great hit of the evening was the Swedish ladies' quartette. Their opening number, a Tyrolian song, absolutely electrified the audience, and they were called out no less than six times. In response to a fifth encore they sang the "Swanee River." The Swedish ladies' quartette appears at the Victoria theatre to-morrow and Saturday evenings, with matinee Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The price of admission for the evening concert has been fixed at 50 cents, gallery 25 cents, with no extra charge for reserved seats.

—The sealing schooner Ella Johnson has returned to the Sound with a catch of 1200 skins. This is probably the prize catch for the length of time the boat was out this season. She left Neah Bay on July 8th. Calm weather was encountered all the way and the schooner did not [illegible] previous till August 8th, and got the first seal on the 12th, leaving only about six weeks in which to hunt. Mr. Nixon, who owns the schooner, said: "This is a tremendous catch for so short a time, and I am highly pleased. The United States government says the seals are all disappearing from Behring Sea. This looks like it, doesn't it?"

—A social and dance will be held in the Philharmonic hall this evening at 8 p.m., under the auspices of the A. O. F. A good programme of local talent has been procured and a good orchestra for the dance.

—Here's a tip! Put your money in a cape, jacket, ulster or a waterproof, as Partridge, of the Lansdowne House, 86 Yates street, is selling them at reduced prices as he needs the room for his millinery department. *

—The Presbyterians, feeling the need of some place of worship for Mount Tolmie district, are erecting a church at the cross roads at the end of Jubilee Hospital road. Hitherto they have been obliged to use the public school for church purposes on Sunday.

—Persons qualified to vote should remember that there only remains to the 15th, a week from next Monday, in which they will be able to place their names on the list. Mr. Archer Martin, over the Bank of Montreal, will receive applications up to that date, and there is nothing to pay.

—Messrs. Carley & Henderson, proprietors of the Commercial Journal and Home Journal, have dissolved partnership. The change will not, however, affect the publications in any way, as Mr. Carley will continue to wield the pen while Mr. Henderson will remain at the business helm.

—Ten drunks lined up in the police court this mornig and told their little stories. A conviction was secured in nearly every case and the usual punishment meted out. Tom, an Indian, found with liquor in his possession, was fined $25 and costs. Charges of supplying liquor made against Fred Nelson and David Craigie were withdarwn, as they were evidently innocent.

—Charlie Kee, of Chicago, one of the wealthiest Chinamen in the United States, is in the city on a business trip. He has varied interests throughout the country, and in the last few years has handled some very extensive labor contracts. He visits the coast quite frequently, and was here last about two years ago. He is a smart, shrewd business man, talks good English and is well posted on current events.

—In the report of the Jubilee Hospital committee on the proposed Maternity Home, Dr. Richardson's estimate of the cost of maintenance was omitted. It follows:

Salaries for staff of trained nurses, assistant nurse and cook	$ 840
Cost of food for the staff at 33 cents per diem	365
Cost of food for six patients	730
Expenses of six patients, drugs and cost of maintaining calculated at $1 per diem	$2,190
Total	$4,125

Harvest Home services will be held at St. John's church this evening. The building has been prettily decorated for the occasion. Canon Beanlands will preach the sermon, Mr. Grizzelle will lead the choir and Mr. Bridgeman will be organist. The musical programme is below: Prelude—Fughetta in D, Alex. Guilmant; processional hymn 382; Psalm 144—Chant Woodward; Psalm 145—Chant Crotch; Magnificat—Read in C; Nunc Dimittis—Read in C; anthem—The [illegible] Hymns 383 and 365; anthem—While the Earth Remaineth—Simper; recessional hymn 393; postlude—Grand Choeur in G—Th. DEATH BY HIS OWN HAND

Peter McAra, a Young Scotchman, Hangs Himself at the City Prison.

He Was Arrested at Midnight for Being Drunk—His Motives Unknown.

Peter McAra, a young Scotchman, hanged himself in the city police barracks between nine and ten o'clock this morning. He was locked up at midnight, having been found drunk, and the disgrace of the thing and dread of facing a hearing were very likely exaggerated in his mind inflamed by his debauch. This is the only apparent excuse for the act. McAra attended the exhibition last night and was seen by a number of people there between nine and ten o'clock. He was then perfectly sober, but after leaving the fair grounds he must have fallen in with some congenial companions, for shortly before 12 o'clock Constable Carter met him on Yates street and he was very drunk. Carter knew him very well and suggested that he would go home. He would not go, and the constable offered to take him home. That seemed to anger him and he wanted to fight. His noise drew a crowd, and the constable did his duty by placing him under arrest. When searched at the station 70 cents in money and a few small articles were found on him. The jail was crowded and McAra was taken upstairs and placed in a cell seldom used as a place of confinement. During the rainy weather the prisoners had been using it for a drying room for their clothes, and a small line hung across the room from the steampipe to the other wall. The rope and steampipe were McAra's gallows. McAra was awake early this morning and ate a little when the prisoners were given their breakfasts. He talked to some of the prisoners, among them Frederick Bollman, the Sydney embezzler. Nothing unusual about his conversation or appearance was noted. The last seen of him alive was at 9 o'clock, when someone passed his cell. At 9:30 Jailor Allen came upstairs to get a description of McAra to enter on the records. Entering his cell he found him hanging from the steampipe. The suicide had stood upon a bucket to make the rope fast about his neck and when ready had kicked it from under him. The rope evidently slid down along the upright pipe a couple of feet, for had he been leaning forward his knees would have touched the floor. When Jailor Allen cut him down he was still quite warm, but all efforts to revive him were of no avail. The body was taken to the public morgue at 11 o'clock, and this afternoon Coroner Hasell is conducting an inquest.

McAra was a native of Scotland and about 29 years of age. He came here five years ago and a little later entered the employ of Phillips Bros., manufacturers of soda water. For four years he drove the firm's delivery wagon, but he used to drink at times and was a little irregular in his work. Three months ago he was transferred to the delivery department to the factory. He was there steady and was at his post until last night. Those who know him say that he was a good-hearted fellow and give a number of instances of his charity. His employers liked him and were greatly shocked at his action. It is believed that he had a wife and child in Scotland.

The funeral will take place to-morrow at 2:30 from Hayward's undertaking parlors.

PROVINCIAL DENTISTS.

Fourth Annual Convention at Present Being Held.

The fourth annual convention of the British Columbia Dental Association was opened to-day at the offices of Drs. Findley & Baker. Those present were: Drs. T. J. Jones, L. Hall, A. E. Verrinder, A. C. West, W. J. Quinlan and A. R. Baker of Victoria; J. M. McLaren and C. B. Mansell of Vancouver; A. J. Holmes of New Westminster and W. J. Curry of Nanaimo.

The morning session was devoted to routine business and the election of officers, all the old ones being re-elected. They are: T. J. Jones, Victoria, president; C. H. Gatewood, Vancouver, first vice-president; H. E. Hall, Nanaimo, second vice-president; A. C. West, secretary-treasurer; W. R. Spencer, A. R. Baker and A. J. Holmes, committee.

H. P. Moody and S. G. Clemence of Victoria and C. B. Mansell of Vancouver were elected members of the association.

The next convention will be held at Harrison Hot Springs on July 18th and 19th, 1895.

The president, Dr. T. J. Jones, read his opening address this afternoon. This evening's and to-morrow's sessions will be devoted to the reading of papers.

Militiamen Look for an Unannounced Visit from General Herbert.

The militiamen of the city are on the tiptoe of expectancy. They have a quiet tip that General Herbert is going to drop in here on Tuesday next and without any warning put them through the rigors of a drill and inspection. If there is one thing above another that the average volunteer dislikes it is that same performance. There is a school of gunnery being conducted by Major Hawstorne, R. M. A., and company and battalion drills have been suspended and inspection put off until the holidays. Only 60 men are taking the instruction, and the remainder of the battalion, some 200 men, are taking it easy. Therefore they are rusty and nervous, and if General Herbert drops in here Tuesday and orders a turn-out for Wednesday, he will very likely wake up Thursday morning with a bad taste in his mouth.

A citizen soldier said this morning that if the general dropped into Winnipeg and the volunteers could not have been any more surprised if they had seen his ghost. It seems that the general just delights in sliding in on his men, and he believes that a soldier should ever be on his guard.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Schooner Earle Had Her Topmast Split On the Japan Coast.

The sealing schooner Walter A. Earle, Captain Louis Magneson, arrived home this morning. She took 1469 skins in Japanese waters and 681 in Behring sea with spears, making 2150 for the season. She had a remarkable experience off the Japan coast in April. During a thunder storm she was truck by lightning. The gilt ball at her topmast head was broken off and fell to the deck and her topmast split. The two men on deck were almost blinded by the flash, and one of them, perhaps from fear, fell down. Both were badly scared. The Earle spoke the Mascotte on the sea on August 15 with 112 skins.

The schooner Pioneer, Captain Pederson, arrived home last night. She took 400 skins on this coast and 1300 around the Copper islands. She was in a hard gale on the way home and lost her stern boat and davits, log and part of her rail.

—The ship City of Glasgow was towed to sea this afternoon.

[illegible] by a majority of 92 a by-law providing for the establishment of electric light works by the city. There is some dispute over the question whether a three-fifths majority was necessary.

—Strangers visiting the city to-day should not forget the grand popular concert in Institute Hall this evening. It would be a fitting close for a day's enjoyment. The artists are all first class, the programme including such names at Mrs. Rowlands, Madame Laird, Mr. E. Wolff, violinist from London College of Music, Clement Rowlands, the popular baritone and J. G. Brown the Scotch vocalist. The selections are most meritorious and will please all who may attend.

—The Victoria Ladies' True Blue lodge held an At Home last night to celebrate their first anniversary, with Mrs. Calwell in the chair. Among those who took part were: Mr. Braden, speech; Mrs. Fernyough, song; Miss Gertrude Furnival, reading; Miss Milne and Miss Baker, duet; Mr. Weeks, reading; Mr. Grimason, song; Bantley family, selection; Miss Braden, piano solo; Miss Pez, song. After coffee and cake was served dancing was commenced and kept up to an early hour everyone seemingly to be well pleased. Music was supplied by the Bantley family.

ALASKA BOUNDARY SURVEY.

Return of the Parties of the Northern Section of the Commission.

Work Accomplished Along the Coast and in the Interior—Presentation.

The steamer Thistle returned from the north with the four parties comprising the northern section of the Canada boundary commission in charge of Mr. William Ogilvie, First Assistant J. L. Cote, J. J. McArthur, A. J. Brabazon and A. C. Talbot. The four parties worked between Mendenhall and Glacier bays on the east side and between Lynn Canal and Cape Spencer on the outer coast. Mr. Ogilvie covered the ground on the east of Lynn canal, Mr. Talbot on the west of the canal and Hudson Bay Inlet, and Mr. McArthur at the head of Lynn canal, making a pretty complete survey of the several passes from Lynn canal into the country watered by the great Yukon and its affluents. Mr. Brabazon conducted the operations around Glacier Bay, on which the great Muir Glacier is situated. The work in the vicinity of Lynn canal was completed during the first week in August, after which Mr. Talbot continued operations around Hudson Bay Inlet, and Mr. Brabazon removed to the vicinity of Dundas and Taylor bays. Messrs. Ogilvie and McArthur continued the work on the outer coast, which is washed by the waters of the Pacific, Mr. McArthur operating at Litnia Bay, extending the work easterly and westerly and carrying the survey west to Cape Fairweather, including Mount Fairweather. Mr. Ogilvie worked between Cape Spencer and Icy Cape on the coast.

The steamer Thistle acted as tender for the northern section of the commission during the summer, and in connection with the work steamed upwards of 7000 miles from the time of her departure to her return to Victoria. There is not an anchorage or bay on the main coast, between Juneau and Yakutat bay, the waters of which lave the foot of Mt. St. Elias, in which she has not anchored one or more times, although many of them are still uncharted. Three splendid harbors were found on the coast between Cape Spencer and Icy Cape, and the Thistle also entered and came out of Litnia bay, unharmed, which is a difficult feat for a vessel of her size. It is only possible to enter the bay for a few moments at slack water at the end of the ebb and flow tides. The passage in is only 240 feet wide, and is fringed on both sides with dangerous rocks. The bay is open to the roll of the Pacific, which might be called eternal, as it never ceases. This is in sharp contrast to the action of any American survey steamer, of not much greater bulk than the Thistle, which had to land a party there in August. The American, instead of entering the bay lay outside until a favorable opportunity permitted the entrance of a launch, by which means the party was landed. They remained outside for fourteen days rather than risk an entrance, although there were three good harbors within four hours' steaming, apparently not knowing of their existence. The Thistle anchored in these harbors on three subsequent occasions. Captain J. C. Arthur, R. N. R., who commanded the Thistle, Mr. Ogilvie says, proved a master sailor, being careful without fear. The members of the commission, master and men, were so pleased with his attention to their wants and convenience, that just before the steamer's arrival here they presented him with the following address:

To Captain J. C. Arthur, R. N. R.:

Sir:—The members of the northern section of the Canadian boundary commission cannot let this occasion go by without expressing to you their appreciation of your attention to their comfort and convenience while in command of the boundary survey tender ship Thistle. As fellow subjects of that great empire that we are all proud of, we feel that our sentiments are summed up in the phrase "He is a British subject." Praise among friends, as we hope we are, is not seemly; so we will only say that we admire the masterly way in which you handled your ship in the interests of the commission, and hope we do not offend your modesty when we say that it could hardly be improved on.

Under your command she has, we think, the proud distinction of being the only ship that has anchored in every bay and anchorage between Juneau and Yakutat in Alaska, though many other ships have been sailing in these waters for generations.

If any act of ours has ruffled for a moment the good feeling between us we would ask you as a parting wish to bury it in forgetfulness deep as the waters which have been your home for so long. In conclusion we ask you to accept the accompanying souvenir as a memento of the pleasant relations which have existed between us, and our sincere wishes for the welfare in every way of yourself and family. May you soon have a better ship more worthy of your skill.

Signed on behalf of the commission on board the steamer Thistle, October 2nd, 1894. William Ogilvie, A. J. Brabazon, Albert C. Talbot, J. L. Cote, J. J. McArthur and H. H. Robertson.

A collection was taken up among the members of the party and upon arrival here a handsome gold scarf pin was purchased and was yesterday presented to Captain Arthur. The pin is in shape of a ship's anchor and wheel with the letters C. I. B. C. (Canadian International Boundary Commission) engraved on it.

During the season the ship was under charge of Mr. Ogilvie, who directed the work in the northern section, although the head of each party had control of his own operations, their field having been assigned to them by the [illegible] Ogilvie's duty was to see that the ship delivered the provisions and mail as regularly as possible and aid the parties in moving about. When work was completed in one quarter he directed the parties where to resume operations, but further than this he had no authority. During July Mr. Ogilvie thought it advisable in the interest of subsequent operations, to make a trip to Yakutat bay, a run of 150 miles in the open ocean. Fortunately the weather was good both ways. From Yakutat bay the St. Elias range is visible, including the giant Mount Logan, which towers 1500 feet above St. Elias, although from its position and distance from the shore it is not nearly as imposing. It is truly a sight, said Mr. Ogilvie, even at the distance of 66 miles, the nearest point he reached. It was heaven-inspiring, he continued, and one could not help catching that spirit while gazing upon it. Mount Logan is certainly in Canada, and probably the peak of Mount St. Elias is on our side of the line.

FARES TO THE FAIR.

To the Editor: Through the medium of your valuable paper I would like to correct a wrong impression that is gaining ground with the general public in regard to the fare charged by the tramway company to the exhibition grounds. In the first place, the corporation is running the exhibition with a view of clearing expenses, and if possible laying aside a sum for the exhibition of 1895, which fact, I am sure, they will not deny. Now is it reasonable to expect the tramway company to carry passengers at a half rate to the exhibition with a view of not clearing expenses? I wonder if the corporation has ever thought that the track from the Jubilee hospital to the Willows was placed there at a cost of several thousand dollars for the exhibition alone, as during the rest of the year that piece of track is a white elephant to the tramway company, and is not earning any interest whatever on their investment on that piece of track? And further, when the exhibition committee of last year found that the exhibition was a failure and was not able to earn [illegible] money they invested in buildings, etc., they came to the corporation to take it off their hands for $25,000. I noticed at the proceedings of Monday night's council meeting that the mayor says he talked the matter of half fares over with the president of the tramway company and that the president said if the corporation would replank the bridge by the power house the company would make a five cent fare to the exhibition. Now, Mr. Editor, I am in a position to state that our worthy mayor only told half the truth, as the tramway company offered to spend $3000 if the corporation would spend $450 in putting Rock bay bridge in a state that it would be safe to drive vehicles over as well as cars, which it is far from being at the present time. Our worthy mayor also headed a committee to wait on the tramway company for the purpose of securing a five cent rate from any part of the city to Fort street and a five cent rate from Fort street to the Willows. But the tramway company could not do this according to their charter, as it would require a further act of parliament to do so.

Ald. Ledingham also stated at the council meet on Monday evening that the tramway company had tried to collect two fares within the city limits and that the city limits is only 150 yards from the end of the train line. Now for the information of Ald. Ledingham I would say that by the charters granted to the tramway company by the corporation on the 20th day of November, 1888, the city limits extended to Pemberton road only, and their charter has never been altered to conform with the extension of the city limits made since that time. I am sure Ald. Ledingham must have been mistaken when he says the tramway company tried to collect tow fares within the city limits, and I would further remind the worthy alderman that by act of parliament a fare is due from every passenger on such passenger entering the car, and if such passenger refuses to pay the fare, or refuses to quit the car when requested to do so, by the conductor, such passenger is liable to a fine not exceeding $20 and costs.

Now, Mr. Editor, the tramway company has expended about $4000 in new cars and wages to extra employes preparing for the rapid transit of passengers to the exhibition, and the tramway is a business that the tramway company is trying to run on business principles. We have only to look at other coast cities and the state of their tramways to see what cheap fares have done for them. The Vancouver and New Westminster tramway is for sale. The Port Townsend tramway is out of existence, and most of the roads in Tacoma, Seattle and Portland are in receivers' hands. Who would suffer if the Victoria tramway, which is well known to be a boon to the public, was to go out of existence or be placed in the hands of a receiver? Not the city corporation, I think. I would also ask the city corporation what they have done toward making the tramway and lighting company a paying institution that they should be so eager for a cheap rate to the exhibition? I think if they were to reduce the price of admission one half to the exhibition grounds it would show that they were willing to do their part towards cheap rates to the fair, and thereby stimulate other corporations to do likewise. But I think if they were asked to do so their answer would be that it would not pay. Yet they do not stop to think whether cheap fares on the tramway would pay or not. Further, I do not think any business house in the city has reduced the price of their goods one half on account of the exhibition, and why should the tramway company be requested to do so? I am sure the officers and employes of the company are doing their utmost to give rapid transit to the general public to the exhibiiton, and I believe the superintendent has done all in his power to accommodate the public. But I do not think he has any authority whatever to alter or make fares. Now, Mr Editor, I do not wish the public to think that I [illegible] or exhibition committee in favor of the tramway company, as I am not, but as a ratepayer and [illegible] purchase of the exhibition grounds and the passage of the electric light by-law, I am not backward in showing the public the faults of the tramway company when it is deserved, but justice and fair play prompt me to put this matter before the public in the proper light, so that an intelligent public they may cast aside any prejudice that is gaining ground fast among them.

JUSTICE TO ALL.

Victoria, Oct. 2.

ASK THE ALDERMEN.

To the Editor: Here I am again troubling you with criticisms on the city aldermen. Those gentlemen are so anxious not to waste the ratepayers' money by letting out the Dougas street sewerage contract by day work that, headed by Ald. Baker, a contractor himself, they have decided to give the job to contractors. Why do they not follow up their economic ideas by calling for tenders for sewer pipe if the pipes are needed? The sewerage committee reported on August 6th that the contract with the Terra Cotta company was at an end, and at the same time advised the five thousand feet of pipe be purchased from that company as it was required, while I know positively that it was not required, as large quantities of pipe (six inch, being the dimensions of the pipe bought) were lying in the corporation's yard, and are there now. Certainly there is something mysterious about the transaction, and will probably remain so as much as the mystery about the electric light plot, copper wire, the engine and many other little jobs. Of course the royal commission having been vetoed by the city council, the voters will have to draw their own conclusions.

The Best Medicine.

J. O. WILSON, Contractor and Builder, Sulphur Springs, Texas, thus speaks of Ayer's Pills:

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever tried; and, in my judgment, no better general remedy could be devised. I have used them in my family and recommended them to my friends and employes for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge, many cases of the following complaints have been completely and by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Third day chills, dumb ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above."

"I have been selling medicine for eight years, and I can safely say that Ayer's Pills give better satisfaction than any other Pill I ever sold."—J. J. Perry, Spotsylvania C. H., Va.

VICTORIA'S BIG FAIR.

Interest in the Exhibition Increasing—A Large Attendance Last Night.

In the Tug-of-War the Scotch Beat the English, and Canadians the Irish.

Mr. Weather Clerk relented so far last evenig as to only threaten rain, with the result that the public threw themselves on his good nature by crowding the street cars bound fairwards for a couple of hours at least. This confidence in the old gentleman was not entirely lost, and consequently the second day at the exhibition closed a great success, both in point of attendance and general results. The race for the popular prize is now keener than ever, because as time goes on little embellishments can be added and goods improved from point of arrangement until it is a matter of choosing between a very great number as compared with a relative few just at present.

American visitors are loud in their praise, and although one "sticks up" for home before anywhere else, yet some of the visitors from the other side say that the Victoria exposition has no excuse to make when comparison is made between it and the Tacoma show in point of local manufactures. This is very encouraging to the people here, as a certain crowd of malcontents are never tired of praising American enterprise without seeing any good at home in that direction. The people of Victoria, too, who have been to the Tacoma show say that we have nothing to be ashamed of; that ours will compare with it in any branch, while the evident capableness of the management shows that they are able to handle a much larger exhibition successfully.

Everything now goes like regulated clock work. The judging is practically completed, and would have been done much earlier had the exhibitors been strictly on time, but this is a case where the laws even of the Medes and Persians have to be relaxed a little for the general benefit. Last evening, when the show case of Pennock & Lowe was broken in the crush to see the tug-of-war contest, there was an impression that this affair should have come off in some other portion of the premises, especially as, owing to the position taken, not more than a third of the people in the building could get a full view of the contest. This change may be effected yet to avoid any further mishap, as the management cannot afford to allow exhibitors to incur loss if by the exercise of some forethought it can be avoided.

A number of the American visitors went home last evening by the City of Kingston, thoroughly delighted with their treatment here and the appearance of the show, but there are several ladies and gentlemen who stayed over to have a better inspection of the exhibits. They were especially taken with some of the manufactures, offering to purchase at the stalls, and were very much surprised to find that the people were exhibiting here for the pride more than for the profit of the thing. This is the reverse of the Tacoma fair, where matters are conducted more or less on the principle of a bazaar. However, arrangements were made by which the visitors' wants were supplied.

There were more than a thousand visitors passed through the stile last evening between halfpast six and eight o'clock, which gave the door keepers something to do to pass on the tickets and provide each person with a voting ticket on the manufacturers' exhibit. In connection with the manufactures, one of the purely local manufacturers is Fred Norris, the harness maker. He takes his leather from the hides of cattle raised in the province; the bark with which he tans it is the British Columbia hemlock bark, which has been mentioned before, and which is apparently limitless in quantity, and which makes a better and lighter colored leather than the eastern process with oak bark. Unlike the eastern makers, too, he never expects to use the leather after tanning till one year at least after it has been immersed, and the benefit to the purchaser is obvious.

Another item of local interest in manufactures is the acoustic swell piano of James Sherman's invention, a patent for which is applied for. The piano is provided with a set of shutters similar to an organ, in front, which is opened by means of a pedal as the various effects of forte and piano are required. The back is closed in, thus having a tendency to throw out in front all sound, instead of having it lost in the wall through a linen backed piano, as is usually the case in other instruments.

Mr. R. T. Williams' establishment, a thoroughly local enterprise, deserves special mention, as it is probably the best equipped of the kind on the coast. Mr. Williams has been a prize winner here for the last twenty years, but he keeps with the times in matters of equipment and workmanship, so that there need be no apology made for his work. In a collection of 25 books on view at the show there is not one which is not fit to compare with anything the eastern houses can send out. The ruling and letter press work is in many cases superior to anything brought in here. This is particularly the case with a splended book, a discount progressive ledger made for the Bank of British Columbia in which the workmanship could not be excelled. There is also a very handsome [illegible] gilt top book, "Picturesque Canada," with inlaid lettering work of a high class character. With the exception of the ledger, however, the exhibit is made up altogether of stock books, and, although of high grade, are not even up to the mark of the general orders that the shop of which Mr. Scott is foreman turns out the year round. It is houses like this that deserve the full and support of the merchants, and now that the latter have seen its capabilities as partially showed at the fair, no doubt there will be fewer books brought from eastern points.

Among the notable features of the fair is the exhibit of Pearline in the shape of a pyramid, surmounted by American and Canadian flags. Pearline is not a competitor at the fair, but is given as a special prize by the manufacturers to those ladies only who secure certain prizes at the exhibition. Judging by the amount of "carding" done by the Pearline fiend in and around the fair one would think that the success of the exhibition depended upon the quantity of cards that he could get up. However, he has proved himself master of all other card stickers, for, go where one will, Pyle's Pearline greets him, from the doorstep to the dome of the building, and all over the race track as well.

From seven till ten the appearance of the building was really fair like, the most chronic grumbler being compelled to admit that it was a splendid sight; the myriads of multicolored lights; the many different shades in the decorations; the products everywhere visible of human skill and human ingenuity and human labor; the tempting taste with which they were arranged; and above all the surging mass of humanity itself, ever moving, and through which it was at any time difficult to force a way, the only means of making any progress being to throw oneself into the throng and move along with it as in a human tide; in all this could be seen evidence of the various phases of mankind; the faces gay and grave, the happy carelessness of youth, the responsible gravity of mature manhood and womanhood in the prime of life, and in those who were on the turn of their period of years either the sadness, the effect of a not very pleasant experience, or the general contentedness with the rest of the world, could be read on the faces as they passed by, all gazing interestedly at the displays and all expressing various comments on them. The spell was broken at ten o'clock by the band playing the national anthem.

Mr. Davidge, determined that his loss by the rain should not either discourage him or prevent the public from seeing the beautiful fabrics of the Orient, had a canvas cover placed over the band stand, and soon had another display, as rich and costly as the first, in position. Unfortunately the light was shut out in the evening by the cover, and the full beauty of the exhibit could not be seen.

The judges' report on the horses was handed in last evening, and will be found appended. It rained most of the time of the parade, but there were many horsey spirits whose ardor could not be dampened, and so there was a goodly crowd at the judging. The Meadlands farm, it will be seen, took nine first prizes and two seconds out of a total of eleven entries, Beauty, the superb saddle horse of Dr. Powell, running out of a bunch of nine beautiful animals with first prize, a keen second being the dashing little mare Cricket, belonging to Mr. J. S. Bowker; in fact, Beauty took three firsts. Mr. R. P. Rithet's splendid stallion Broadmead was successful against Sir Peter, it being a neck and neck race in the judges' favor of the prize. Sir Peter takes no back place, though, in accepting second prize, both horses being all that could be wished in point of breed and beauty. The fine old veteran Ophir, the property of Munro Miller, came third. Ophir has had his day, and a splendid day it was, while there are few horses that can point to such a clean record and fine pedigree. The Victoria Truck and Dray company, Mr. Mellmoyl, Mr. McPhail, Mr. H. A. King and Mr. Corfield were among the other successful competitors, the judges having all they could do in the various classes to decide on the most meritorious.

Late last evening a protest was handed in to the secretary's office by the owner of Christmas, the protest being against the stallion Midgard from the Tolmie estate.

Every one regrets the smallness of the dairy produce exhibit this year, but as far as the quality goes the prizes won by Mr. Bryant, Mr. Denholme and A. C. Wells & Co. were well deserved. The management hope to improve on this [illegible] next year, as the industry is making rapid strides in this province, and there is no reason why the people interested in it should not further improve it by coming out in competition.

The poultry department had some spare room also, but had no apology to make in the matter of high class grades of birds in the branches that were shown. Dr. Milne's yard is well represented as usual with some first-class breeds, and the prize list shows how he has succeeded. Messrs. Hodgson and N. W. Kaye are also large prize winners.

FAIR NOTES.

The tug-of-war teams last evening on the Scotch and English sides were splendid men, and the victory went to the former after a dogged struggle, out of which several of the men came in a strained and prostrated condition. There were many opinions expressed as to the propriety of such contests, a number of ladies being unable to look at the men, whose faces were of a purple hue, their veins standing out like whipcords, and their faces bathed in perspiration from unnatural effort. In the Canadian-Irish trial the former won. The struggle will be repeated this evening, and it is expected that there will be a trial of strength between a team from the board of directors and one from the citizens' committee Saturday evening.

VICTORIA'S GREAT FAIR

This evening one of the leading features will be the typewriting contest, for which there are several entries. The conditions of the tournament are a test of five minutes' duration of strange matter and a minute's test of a memorized sentence: "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party," an old standby in typewriting contests. In the latter test it is expected all the machines will be worked together, which will be a novel sight to those whose knowledge of the speed of the typewriter is limited. The award to the successful competitor will be one of the society's handsome diplomas. So far the following entries have been made: Messrs. Mallette, Gilbert, Grimm, Lawson, Thurgeson, Potts, Duncan, Cave, Miller and Geddes.

CANADA'S DAY.

The fine weather to-day raised everybody's hopes for a brilliant time, notwithstanding the threatenings of rain which were frequently made. During the earlier portion of the day the visitors to the grounds were composed mainly of people from outside points.

There was a meeting of the directors this morning which lasted till one o'clock, to inquire into the protest filed against Midgard. After fully considering the matter the directors appointed a committee to make further inquiries and report at a meeting to be held to-morrow morning, when a decision will no doubt be arrived at.

The preserved fruit and other miscellaneous articles were judged this morning, and the judges' report is being copied into the official books this afternoon.

At one o'clock there was held the first stock parade since the fair commenced; the animals, especially the horses, which have been confined all the week, were glad to be out again, the consequence being a great display of equine conceit. The horses looked remarkably well, their trainers having put all the finishing touches possible on their charges.

The lacrosse match has also attracted a great number of people to-day, but if the weather keeps favorable, the great rush is expected for this evening.

The bicyclists not having attachments to their machines to enable them to navigate considerable stretches of water or liquid earth did not hold their races yesterday, but will do so Saturday, thus adding another item to an already excellent programme for the closing day.

It should be remembered that the admission fee is only 25 cents in the evening. Every one can afford that small sum these hard times, and the amount of education to be derived from a visit to the fair is worth many times the expenditure.

To-morrow will be children's day, and will be marked hereafter with a large red letter in the calendar of the youngsters' memories.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Elaborate preparations have been made for Children's day at the fair to-morrow. The pupils and teachers will assemble at the Central school at 12.30, and forming ranks will leave at 1 o'clock for the fair grounds, headed by the B. C. B. G. A. band. It is expected that upwards of two thousand children will be present. The concert will commence at 2 o'clock.

THE VISITORS WON.

Seattle Athletic club added another victory to its list yesterday afternoon, when its baseball team defeated the Victoria boys by a score of 11 to 8. The game was played at the race track on a muddy diamond and in a continuous downpour of rain. Despite all that it was a good game and warmly contested. Schultz started out to pitch for Victoria, but it was an off day with him, and Franklin, who was substituted, did very well. Duck, Smith, Williams and Schultz played good ball.

WESTMINSTER'S NEW BISHOP.

Rev. W. Hibbert Binney Selected by the Synod.

New Westminster, Oct. 4.—The Church of England Synod, which met here yesterday to elect a bishop to succeed the late Bishop Sillitoe, finished last evening by selecting for the high office Rev. W. Hibbert Binney, M. A., vicar of Wilton, Cheshire, England, son of the late Bishop Binney of Nova Scotia. The bishop-elect is a Canadian born.

MR. PICKWICK AND THE INN.

Why Dickens Conceived a Hatred of the "Great White Horse."

"I picked up one little bit of information about Pickwick which appears to be quite genuine. Strolling up Abbeygate street in the afternoon I turned into a shop to make a small purchase, and as the keeper appeared disposed for conversation I sat down and joined in. First he told me that this was the house in which Bishop Tomline was born. Though I am not an enthusiastic admirer of that prelate, I was interested because of his connection with Winchester, a city very dear to me, so I heard what little my new acquaintance had to tell me. Then he went on to say that his father was for some years proprietor of the Great White Horse, Ipswich. I was on the alert in a moment. 'It was there,' I said, 'that Mr. Pickwick went after Jingle, after leaving Bury.' 'It was, sir.' 'And it is quite clear,' I went on, 'that for some reason Dickens did not like the White Horse, for he states it right and left.' 'Dickens,' was the reply, 'did his best to ruin the house, but he really made its fortune. Hundreds of people have been there to see it after reading of it. But I can tell you a curious thing about it. It was Dickens' own mistake about going into the wrong bedroom. There is a sort of triangle on the top of the stairs, and there are two doors just alike, and he went in where some people were in bed, and they roared out at him, and he bolted all in confusion.' He went on to tell me that the room is still called Mr. Pickwick's room, and that it is 'No. 16.' That same evening in the coffee room of the Angel we met a party, one member of which was known to me as a literary character, and he told us that he had just come from Ipswich, and that they had been to the Great White Horse, and he had slept in Mr. Pickwick's room. 'Number 16?' said I. 'The very one,' was the answer. Of course, after that, I read to my little party that same evening the adventure of the amorous lady with the curl-papers, and most exhilarating was the laugh which it produced."—Church Times, London.

that an imperial edict expressing the sorrow of the throne at the news has already been issued, and the grand secretary and Viceroy Li Hung Chang is commissioned to punish the officer responsible for the infamous conduct of his men. The actual assailants of Mr. Wylie are to be executed and proclamations sternly forbidding insults or assaults on foreigners are to be issued. The chapel at Liao Yang is to be restored and Mr. Wylie's family to be compensated."

The Japanese Gazette says Japanese journalists are taking alarm at the prospect of an alliance between England, France, Germany and Russia. The ground of alarm, from the tenor of native newspaper comment, may be readily guessed. They fear that after Japan has demolished the Chinese fleet and driven the Japanese out of Corea the four European powers will intervene and prevent Japan inflicting any further injuries on China, so that indemnity will not be obtained.

Cholera is said to be raging at Tientsin and a French naval officer is reported to have fallen a victim to the disease.

London, Oct. 4.—A Pekin dispatch says many foreign customs officials resident in Pekin are leaving the city with their families.

The Manchester Guardian suggests that the Cabinet council consider Russia's demand that the powers collectively interfere with a view of effecting a settlement in the China-Japan troubles. Lord Rosebery fears that Russia will act alone in the matter to the detriment of England if the latter refuses to agree.

A Shanghai dispatch says great excitement has been caused in the city of Ning Po by the report that five Japanese warships had been seen near the entrance to the Ning Po river.

A Yokohama dispatch to the St. James' Gazette says the Japanese government has decided to demand an indemnity, but the amount of which is not known. The same dispatch says the Japanese have dispersed the rebellious Gotatukos in Corea.

A Shanghai dispatch says according to Chinese accounts the engagement at Ping Yang was not a pitched battle. The total number of Chinese troops actually engaged was only twelve thousand. Two of the Chinese generals, seeing that they were outnumbered, withdrew, but General Tso Fung, commander in chief of the Manchurian troops, stood his ground until only eight hundred of his force of twenty-three hundred remained. Nothing is known at Shanghai regarding the reported mutiny of the Chinese army at Wi Ju.

THE TEA TASTER'S TALE.

Not Very Reassuring for the Drinker of Tea.

A tall, slim man with a black moustache, dark eyes and closely cropped black hair registered at the California hotel a few days ago, and has since been going and coming in a nervous sort of way. He registered as G. C. Smythe, of New York. He seemed a man who had important business on hand, but what it was no one knew.

Last night he was dining in the cafe at the hotel, and it was noticed that he drank plentifully of the wine, though not so much as to make the effect noticeable.

"I do this," he said, "to get my nerves into proper condition. The fact is I am a tea-taster, and this profession is very hard on me physically. I have been following it for several years. Yes, you may know it is an important business, since there are only ten tea-tasters in the United States. We are engaged both by large merchants, or tea brokers, and by the government. I have visited this city several times to taste teas, and have often visited Vancouver for that purpose.

"Since the Canadian Pacific railroad was completed and a line of steamers established from the Orient, immense cargoes of tea have been going there from China, Japan and other countries. It has been my business to examine and taste various samples from these cargoes. I have also visited Ceylon and nearly all the tea-growing countries of the Orient to observe the mode of putting up the tea.

"It is astonishing the way they manage to adulterate it over there. The packers are so skillful that they manage to slip in a great deal of inferior tea and work it off under good brands. This makes the merchants who afterwards handle it complain. Packages of tea of a certain brand will be found all that could be desired, while other packages bearing the same brand and in the same cargo will be highly adulterated.

"As this tea is very costly there is need of experts to examine it. They must be good ones, for everything depends for the time being on their judgment. A taster can only taste a few hours at a time, when he must take special pains to get himself in shape for it. I was about six weeks getting myself ready for examining some cargoes in the warehouses here for the government.

"Before I began I did not taste intoxicants in any form, and did not even smoke. At the same time I was careful not to eat strong peppers or spices, or in fact anything that could distort the taste. One must be in as perfect condition, in order to properly judge of the teas he tastes, as a horse is when prepared for the Derby, or Corbett and Jackson when about to begin a fight for the championship. He must be at his best, and must feel that he is.

"This afternoon in six hours I made $2,900 tasting tea, so you see from this how valuable the time of a tea-taster is, and how careful he must be of his condition. On each of two or three previous days I made almost as much. The best tea-tasters of the country make enormous sums, considering the time employed; $10,000 a year is a low sum, and oftentimes from $20,000 to $30,000 is made, and even more. I know a man in the business who made $50,000. It all depends on his standing, the number of times he is called as a taster and what he can endure.

"In my case this time the government has sent me to examine teas in order to correct certain statistics among the custom-houses. You know there is now a very large number of men collecting statistics throughout this country and Europe in regard to labor, the costs of various products and other things. It has lately desired to learn all it can about the adulteration of foods and drink, and this is why I have been engaged here.

"I am substantially through with my tea-tasting in San Francisco for the present, and this is why I have been drinking wine, which, as I said, is the best restorative for the weakness after a long strain at tasting."—Examiner.

CRICKET MATCH IN TORONTO.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—Play in the match between the Canadian and Lord Hawke's team commenced at 1:30. Goldingham was retired on Hill's first ball without scoring. Terry was then caught in out field off Hill after scoring 1. Jones was next caught at the wicket after scoring 7, making a total of 13 for three wickets. Lyon went out for 2 and two balls later Laing was clean bowled for 13 making a total of 25 for five wickets.
